400 Trigg County homes without water after rupture

Fire hoses deployed to deal with outage

BY DENNIS O'NEIL
NEW ERA FEATURE WRITER

A water main underneath Lake Barkley ruptured Monday morning, leaving about 400 Trigg County homes without water.

The affected homes are in the Donaldson Creek area. Barkley Lake Water District ran fire hoses and distributed water from fire hydrants to customers Monday night. The company is using water from its treatment plant in Canton.

The water district issued a boil water advisory for the Terrapin Creek, Cumberland Shores, Barkley Shores, Heather Hills and Rolling Hills communities along Lake Barkley. Customers receiving water from the fire hydrants are also under the advisory. Terry Goins, general manager for the water district, said water should be boiled for at least three minutes before being consumed.

Divers investigated the rupture Monday and concluded the main could not be fixed. Goins said the main was installed in 1968 and thinks its age played a role in the rupture.

"There's a lot of pressure down there underneath the lake and it just blew," Goins said.

The water company will construct a new main, but is trying to determine if it will go under the water or through a levee along a nearby highway. If the main can go along the highway, Goins said, it should only take around a week to build. He has applied for a permit through the Kentucky Department of Highways for the project and is awaiting approval.

If the permit is not approved, the main will have to be constructed under the water and would take at least a month to complete, Goins said. The water advisory will be in place until a new line is constructed.

Trigg County Judge-Executive Stan Humphries said the Donaldson Creek area includes several subdivisions. Many of the homes, he said, are used only seasonally by residents. He's relieved the rupture happened while many of the homes aren't in use.

"If this were June, we'd have a lot more people without water," Humphries said.

State economist discusses tax reform principles

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Members of Gov. Steve Beshear's Blue Ribbon Commission on Tax Reform went to class Tuesday to learn about major state taxes, tax terminology, comparative tax rates among the states and principles of tax reform.

Greg Harkenrider, deputy executive director of the Governor's Office of Economic Analysis gave definitions of terms such as "progressive," "regressive" and "proportional" taxation, and what he called the Holy Grail of tax reform, "economic efficiency."

For most economists, Harkenrider said, tax efficiency involves "a low rate and broad base," so that a tax produces revenue but does not discourage growth.

He mentioned that Tennessee has a 9.75 percent sales tax, compared with Kentucky's 6 percent rate, and taxes food. As a result, many Tennesseans are buying their groceries at Meijer, Walmart and Kroger stores in Kentucky.

Former ECC employee claims unlawful firing

BY BENJAMIN JOUBERT
NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

A former Hopkinsville-Christian County Emergency Communications Center employee recently filed a legal complaint alleging she was unlawfully fired twice and harassed during her time at the department.

Sonia M. Graham, of Oak Grove, also accused her higher-ups at the ECC of consistently ignoring her reports of policy violations.

She is suing the city of Hopkinsville, the ECC board of directors and several ECC employees for racial discrimination, sexual harassment, unlawful retaliation, wrongful termination, falsification of business records, tort of outrage and punitive damages.

Graham was hired by the ECC as a telecommunications officer in July of 2009. In the following months, Graham said she reported multiple breeches of ECC employee protocol to her superiors and to Board Member Livy Leavell. Those reports were ignored and, as a result, her superiors became hostile toward her, according to the complaint.

In another instance, while off duty, Graham said she called the communications center to report an unlawful activity. The dispatchers ignored and refused to process her call, she said.

On May 24, 2010, Graham filed an official complaint with ECC director Judy Toombs accusing the assistant-director Joann Cowherd and shift supervisor Charis Ford of making racially derogatory and sexually offensive comments about her; the complaint states. Neither Cowherd nor Ford were reprimanded, Graham said. She states the conduct bred emotional "anxiety, stress, humiliation and depression."

Graham was fired three days later on reasons of "workplace violence, insubordination, improper conduct and lack of courtesy, uniform and conduct of personnel," according to the suit.

Graham said in the complaint she had scored in the 96th percentile on her curriculum tests and received "nothing but favorable comments and ratings on her daily observation reports during her training period."

After writing a grievance and giving an oral testimony to the ECC board, Graham was reinstated by the department and continued working for the ECC for two months. During her second term with the department, Graham filed two written complaints after she was denied her preferable work schedule. Those complaints were ignored, Graham alleges.

Again, on Dec. 29, 2010, the ECC board

The National Weather Service had issued a ban on burning because of high winds.

Scaffolding, electronics, personal items stolen

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Two burglaries and two thefts were recently reported to the Christian County Sheriff's Department.

A Hillwood Street man told deputies that $60,000 in construction scaffolding was stolen from a semi-trailer between Feb. 10 and Friday, according to a sheriff's report.

Allen White said the semi was parked on Bell Station Road. The report doesn't list any suspects.

In another burglary report, a television and laptop were stolen Sunday evening from a home on Yoakum Circle. Angelina Medina told deputies that between 4:10 p.m. and 6 p.m., someone broke into her house and took a 32-inch flat screen television and HP laptop, according to a sheriff's report.

The report estimates the value of the items at $750. A suspect is listed in the report.

In another burglary report, Gary Ebling left his Greenville Road home around 7:45 a.m. Monday afternoon. When he returned at 1:30 p.m., someone had forced open his front door and stolen his television, according to a sheriff's report.

The television is valued at $1,200, deputies said. No suspects are listed in the report.

Man hospitalized after truck overturns in Crofton

A semi-truck hauling chicken litter tipped over in Crofton on Tuesday morning, trapping the driver inside.

Layton Vandervort, 64, of Sturgis, was driving west on Kentucky 1348 when, for an unknown reason, the semi went off the left shoulder and overturned, according to a Kentucky State Police news release.

Vandervort, who works for Hendrickson Brothers Farms in Morganfield, was trapped inside for approximately an hour and fifteen minutes. A helicopter took him to Deaconess Hospital in Evansville, Ind. His injuries did not appear to be life-threatening, said Andrew McGregor, of Kentucky Vehicle Enforcement.

The road was shut down for around three and a half hours.

Audit: Todd County records are accurate

BY NICK TABOR
NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

Todd Fiscal Court received a clean audit for its 2010-2011 fiscal year, Kentucky Auditor Adam Edelen's office announced Tuesday.

All the county's financial statements accurately reflect expenditures and deposits, according to the audit report.

However, Edelen's office cited the county for several procedural matters.

Because the county offices, including the treasurer and clerk, have only a few employees, they do not conform to state standards for segregation of bookkeeping duties. Having different employees handle financial deposits at designated times helps prevent employee theft, the state reasons.

But the auditor's office cites Todd and many other counties of its size every year for this same violation. Todd Treasurer Tammy Robertson said it has happened in every Todd County audit since she started working there 11 years ago.

House committee approves proposed state budget

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. — An austere state executive branch budget that eliminated meager pension increases passed a House committee overwhelmingly on Tuesday on its way to a floor vote that could come as soon as today.

Rep. Rick Rand, chairman of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee that voted 26-2 to pass the budget proposal, said no one is happy with the budget that includes widespread spending cuts.

"Given the times we're in, it's probably the best we could do," Rand said after his committee voted 26-2 to pass the budget proposal.

The monthly income of some 200,000 retirees who had been slated to receive 1.5 percent increases in each of the next two years would remain the same under the proposed $19.5

Another theft was reported by a Pembroke Road woman Sunday morning. Nancy N. Lind told deputies a sterling silver salt and pepper shaker set, dinner bell, silver spoon and silver cup with brush were stolen from her home. Lind said several people who work for her are in-and-out of the house periodically, according to the report.

Lind's doors were unlocked so the workers could have entered the home, the report said. The stolen items are valued at $910.

Trio arrested after fight with police

A Hopkinsville police officer confronted a 27-year-old man who was allegedly refusing to leave the Princess Theater just after midnight on Saturday. Two of the man's friends attacked the officer, the officer said.

An HPD sergeant and a Kentucky State trooper came to help. The police fought the three people on the street until they could get everyone in handcuffs and into patrol cars, according to a police report.

Patrick A. Hazel, 27, Tiffany Smith, 26, and Sharon E. Pascoe, 22 are all facing charges that include assaulting an officer. All three are members of the Army, stationed at Fort Campbell, according to the police report.

The first officer, Eddie Eastman, confronted Hazel outside the Princess Theater on Friday. Bouncers were telling Hazel to leave, Eastman said. After a fight broke out, Sgt. Michael Felts came to help. Felts used a stun gun on Hazel, and the officers ultimately took Smith and Hazel to the ground and held them until they got handcuffs on them, the report said.

Eastman and Felts said all three suspects were drunk.

Permanent I-69 signs to mark highway

A Hopkinsville contractor has started installing permanent Interstate 69 signs along the former Pennyryle Parkway stretch between Eddyville and Madisonville.

Many more upgrades to the I-69 corridor will occur over the summer, the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet announced.

For months, temporary I-69 signs have marked the corridor, which covers 38 miles of the former parkway and 16 miles of Interstate 24, according to a transportation cabinet news release.

The corridor requires $9.9 million worth of upgrades to meet federal standards for interstate highways, the release said. Other requirements include upgrading ramp tapers and raising bridges to change clearance levels for trucks.

Westate Construction, Inc., of Hopkinsville, is the prime contractor, according to the release.

Whitfield visits Fort Campbell

U.S. Rep. Ed Whitfield, R-KY, visited Fort Campbell on Friday with U.S. Defense Secretary Leon Panetta.

Following the Fort Campbell visit, Whitfield spoke at the dedication of the Livingston County Library in Smithland.

"It's an honor to represent the men and women of Fort Campbell, home to the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault)," Whitfield said. "They are true American heroes."

BUDGET: State budget proposal passes

David Smith, president of the Kentucky Association of State Employees, said "taking money from retirees" to balance the budget "is beyond ridiculous."

Gov. Steve Beshear has declared "the day of reckoning has come" when he presented his budget proposal to lawmakers last month calling for 8.4 percent cuts to most agencies. Only education, public safety and a handful of other programs would be spared under his plan to close a $742 million shortfall.

House lawmakers recommended several adjustments to Beshear's proposal, including 8.4 percent cuts to the state judicial system's proposed budget just weeks after Supreme Court justices struck down a legislative redistricting plan as unconstitutional. Rand's committee approved the judicial budget by a 25-3 vote on Tuesday. The legislative budget, which included the same level of cuts, passed 28-1.

terminated Graham during a closed session meeting. Graham was not informed of the board's decision and was made aware of it through a local television station, according to the complaint. Graham filed a second grievance to the ECC board, but was denied.

Graham is seeking compensatory damages due to lost wages and benefits, emotional distress, attorney fees, and other relief. She also wants to be reinstated to her position at the ECC.

Leavell told the New Era on Tuesday that the board denies Graham's accusations and that she was terminated with cause for creating a hostile environment. Because the suit is pending, Leavell wouldn't comment on the specifics of the complaint but said Graham's claims that he ignored her reports of policy violations were "an absolute lie."

Toombs and Police Chief Guy Howie chose not to comment on the lawsuit Tuesday afternoon. Howie is an ECC board member.

Graham's attorney, Kenneth W. Humphries, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

The ECC board is comprised of Howie, Leavell, Hopkinsville Fire Chief Fagan Pace and Chris Patterson. The lawsuit is also levied against Christian County, the city of Hopkinsville, Toombs, Cowherd, and ECC supervisors Toni Majors, Stephanie Noel, Sarah Drennan, Kathee Delany and Ford.

ACCIDENTS: Woman injured on Eagle Way

Woman injured in collision on bypass

A Hopkinsville woman was hospitalized Monday after a Volkswagen Beetle collided with her Toyota Highlander.

The driver of the Beetle, Cayce B. Scott, 16, of Hopkinsville, was going east on Eagle Way when a Toyota, pulling off the Pennyryle Parkway exit, entered her lane, according to a Hopkinsville police report.

Scott crashed into the front passenger's side door of the Toyota. The driver of the Toyota, Phyllis S. Wallace, 76, was knocked unconscious. Scott told police Wallace pulled out in front of her. Wallace said she stopped before pulling onto the road, but didn't see the Scott's car.

Wallace was taken to Jennie Stuart Medical Center.

Single-vehicle wreck puts 4 in hospital

A rollover car wreck put four people in the hospital Sunday afternoon, according to a Christian County Sheriff's Department news release.

Dustin M. Cohoon, 17, of Linn Street, was driving north on Old Madisonville Road in a Pontiac Grand Prix GT when he went over a hill with a bend on the other side. When Cohoon went over the hill, he was partially in the opposite lane with a car approaching, police said. Cohoon swerved, and Pontiac went off the left side of the road and into a fence, according to the report.

The car then struck an embankment and rolled two to three times before coming to a rest on its roof, police said.

Cohoon, Kayla Darling, 19, of Crofton, Zachery N. Morris, 19, of Crofton, and Samantha C. Hudnall, 20, of Hopkinsville, were taken to Jennie Stuart Medical Center.

At the emergency room, Cohoon allegedly told police he smoked marijuana 30 minutes before the wreck. Cohoon was also driving on a suspended license, police said.

Charges are currently pending against Cohoon, the report said.

UK implants new type of artificial heart

FROM THE KENTUCKY PRESS NEWS SERVICE

You can hear Zack Poe's heart approaching.

The 20-year-old with the SynCardia Total Artificial Heart strides into the room carrying a 13 1/2-pound device, called the Freedom Driver, that's as big as a briefcase and runs on batteries or electrical power.

Poe is the first Kentucky recipient of the SynCardia device.

He got his artificial heart on Feb. 10. University of Kentucky medical officials said Monday that a second transplant took place last week with a Lexington man in his 50s. The hospital did not release the man's name, but officials said the man "is currently recovering in the hospital and doing well."

The SynCardia/Freedom Driver device sounds like a really quiet washing machine, and Poe said he doesn't mind the noise. As long as he hears it, he knows that he's alive and awaiting a heart transplant.

"The most awkward part is actually the hoses," he said of the device.

UK is one of 29 medical centers in the United States certified to perform the SynCardia procedure. The SynCardia setup is a bridge to a transplant heart, said Dr. Charles Hoopes, director of the UK heart and lung transplant program. A patient can live a fairly normal life with the SynCardia for months or years, Hoopes said, but it is not a long-term substitute for a heart transplant.

Poe, who grew up in Maysville and now lives in Hebron, didn't have a regular doctor before his health crisis. He walked four miles a day while working and had played soccer.

On Jan. 2, he went in for a doctor's appointment for what he thought was an ulcer.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zack Poe of Maysville speaks to media Monday about his Total Artificial Heart, shown on the table, at UK Charles T. Wethington Jr. Building in Lexington.

From there, his condition progressively worsened.

Doctors later discovered that his heart-ejection fraction — a measurement that shows the amount of blood the heart can pump into the body with each beat — was less than 10 percent. Healthy people generally have heart-ejection fractions between 55 and 75 percent.

Then Poe's liver began to fail.

That's when he came to UK Chandler Hospital, where he underwent the four-hour SynCardia procedure. Although his heart was removed and examined, doctors still don't know what caused Poe's heart failure.

UK hopes to conduct six of the procedures a year, with an ultimate goal of 10 to 12 a year, Hoopes said.

UK Healthcare has been working with various techniques over the last few years to help patients stay out of hospital beds while they await life-saving procedures such as heart or lung transplants. Resting in the hospital was once considered the preferred treatment, but UK has increasingly worked with techniques that get patients out of bed, reasoning that it made them stronger candidates for surgery.

Poe was expected to leave the hospital by Tuesday. He has taken several short jaunts outside — one for sushi in Lexington and another to visit friends and family in Maysville.

Grants approved for mountain students

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Appalachian students would have a fresh source of money to pay for college under a measure approved by the House Education Committee on Tuesday.

The proposal, which now goes to the full House for consideration, would provide grants of up to $6,000 a year to students attending a handful of private colleges in the mountain region.

The proposal is a spinoff from an earlier recommendation to turn the private University of Pikeville into a public university to boost educational levels and spur the economy in central Appalachia. Widespread opposition led to that idea being withdrawn.

The scholarship program could help achieve the same goal, said state Rep. Leslie Combs, D-Pikeville, sponsor of both proposals.

The funding source for the "Kentucky Appalachian College Completion Grants" would be coal severance tax revenue that's earmarked for multi-county economic development projects in the region. Former Gov. Paul Patton, now president of the University of Pikeville, said increasing educational levels would make the impoverished central Appalachian region more appealing to businesses looking to build or relocate.

"I think this is true economic development," said state Rep. Carl Rollins II, chairman of the House Education Committee. "This is probably the best economic development you could do in the region."

Patton said he still believes a private university is needed in eastern Kentucky. But he said the proposal for a scholarship program for mountain students will be beneficial in increasing the number of people in the state's Appalachian region with bachelor's degrees.

The scholarships would be available to students who already have at least 60 college credits from a community college and then transfer to the University of Pikeville, Alice Lloyd College, Clear Creek Baptist Bible College, the University of the Cumberlands or Union College. All are accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

The original proposal would have used some $13 million a year from the coal tax to turn the private University of Pikeville into a public school. It's been discarded for now because Patton was unable to garner enough support to get it through the legislature. Gov. Steve Beshear has hired a consulting firm to review the proposal for a new public university and to report the findings by March 15.

Some critics had complained that the economic recession has pinched the state's existing universities and that Kentucky can little afford a ninth four-year campus. Proponents argued that using funding from a pool of cash available only for coalfield projects would not infringe on the existing universities.

KENTUCKY BRIEFS

Tennessee mother sentenced to 10 years for assaulting son

BENTON, Ky. (AP) — A Tennessee mother who pleaded guilty to assaulting her toddler son and leaving him on an interstate in western Kentucky has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Circuit Clerk Carla Marshall told The Paducah Sun that 30-year-old Cynthia Palmer was sentenced Monday in Marshall County.

Palmer was indicted on charges of first-degree assault, public intoxication, wanton endangerment, DUI and possession of drug paraphernalia last year after police said she struck her 2-year-old son and left him on Interstate 24 after inhaling synthetic drugs.

Palmer's attorney, Jamie Jameson, said his client will serve 85 percent of her sentence before she is eligible for parole.

He said her arrest came at a turbulent time for the family, but Parker is moving toward recovery.

"Hopefully this brings closure for everybody and everyone can move on and forward with their lives," Jameson said. "Cynthia has already begun the process and wants to make amends with her family."

Commonwealth Attorney Mark Blankenship said he was satisfied with the outcome of the case.

"Anytime you can meet the goal of the officers that served the case, that seems enough punishment to me," Blankenship said. "It was a tough case with some very unusual facts, but this was a just result."

2 former football players arrested after Murray State fraternity fight

MURRAY, Ky. (AP) — Two former Murray State football players have been arrested after a fight at a fraternity house.

Murray police say charges against 23-year-old Victor Daniels and 23-year-old Ryan Walker, both of Murray, stem from a March 3 altercation at the Alpha Tau Omega house. Daniels is charged with sexual abuse and Walker is charged with assault.

Police said in a statement that 21-year-old Devin Graves of Murray was injured in a dispute that began with a female being harassed.

Linda Graves told WPSD-TV that her son suffered a broken jaw because he tried to defend the young woman.

The university said it is investigating and has suspended the fraternity from campus activities.

Cash-strapped daughter chooses to become neighbor

DEAR AMY: I have a loving family with six daughters and a wonderful husband. We have always been somewhat lenient but caring with our children. My 20-year-old daughter, "Sandy," had been living with her 21-year-old fiancé for a few months and couldn't make it financially. They asked if they could both live with my family. Because we said no, it is against our beliefs, they moved into his mother's house, down the street. I feel so hurt that his mother went directly against our spoken wishes and let them move in. Sandy was always a straight-A student, and her grades at college have plummeted. Her fiancé is very controlling, and we feel concerned because he won't let her out of his sight. Sandy thinks she can borrow my car and come over and pretend nothing happened, but all her sisters and dad and I are terribly hurt. How do I deal with this? — Worried Mother

DEAR WORRIED: Your daughter is making choices. And though you don't agree with these choices (and they seem to affect her life negatively), she is still making them — with or without you. You need to respect her right to make these decisions, while continuing to love and mentor her from a distance, in the hopes that as she matures and changes she will remember the ethics and quality of her upbringing and choose to live her life differently. She is facing some of the real-life consequences of trying to succeed outside of your family's home. She might actually be safer and more secure in this other family's home down the street than she would be piecing it together with this controlling man out in the world. Your attitude toward her should be, "We remain and will always be your loving parents. We are here for you." If she is hooked up with someone who is controlling, this is all the more reason to keep the home fires stoked and the door open. Of course your daughter wants to pretend that nothing has happened. But you are the adults. There is no need to run from the truth — but you do need to accept and then deal with it. If you don't want to lend your car to her, then don't. But don't sever your relationship over something as trivial as her adolescent attitude.

Pray that God will guide adult son on the right path

DEAR REV. GRAHAM: I'm convinced our son is about to make a big mistake by marrying a woman who's selfish and has been married several times before, but he won't listen. I suppose we ought to leave him alone, but how can we? We don't want to see him get hurt. — Mrs. E. McC. DEAR MRS. E. McC.: No parent likes to watch their children go down a wrong road, and it's natural to want to intervene and try to help them realize what they're doing wrong. In fact, this is part of our responsibility as parents. But when our children become adults, we no longer have control over them. We can warn them, and we can try to help them see what is ahead for them but ultimately they must make their own decisions, and we even must give them the freedom to make their own mistakes. Remember that you don't know your son's future wife as well as he does; people can change, and perhaps she has changed and they'll find lasting happiness together. If your son does marry this woman, I hope you'll welcome her into your family. On the other hand, if his decision turns out to be wrong, let him know you still love him. I'm sure the father of the prodigal son in Jesus' parable knew his son might waste his inheritance and almost destroy his life but he still welcomed him home. Pray for your son.

NATION BRIEF

Obama: Time to get out of Afghan war

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama says the furor in Afghanistan over the accidental burning of Qurans underscores the need for the U.S. to transition out of the war there. Obama emphasized that the U.S. still plans to end its combat role in Afghanistan by the end of 2014. The drawdown will be a central topic of discussion at the NATO meetings in Chicago in May. Obama says the recent accidental burning of Muslim Qurans by U.S. forces and the protests that followed underscore the challenges in Afghanistan and why the U.S. is drawing down its combat role there. Thirty people died in the Quran protests, including six American troops.

Pennyroyal Puzzler answers

NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

The winner in the second round of Pennyroyal Puzzler is James Hunter, who correctly answered 19 of the 20 puzzle questions and the bonus round question. He was close on Question 17 (Where Kate and William would reside in Hopkinsville.) Hunter answered Sheffield Downs, but the correct answer based on Michael Combs' puzzle is Cambridge Drive. Hunter said he had some help from Elizabeth Morris, who was the winner in the first round of Pennyroyal Puzzler. Another reader who tackled the puzzle in the second round and came close to a perfect score was Dr. Bill Adkins, a Hopkinsville dentist who said he had help from his office staff. One question that tripped up Adkins was No. 6 (Observation made by APSU basketball fans in the early 1970s). Adkins answered "Let's go Peay," which has been a popular chant at Austin Peay ballgames for many years. However, in this case, the correct answer was "Fly is open." Combs' question was a reference to the Austin Peay men's basketball player James "Fly" Williams, who averaged 29.5 points a game as a freshman in 1973 and 27.5 points as a sophomore in 1974.

Here are the answers to Michael Combs' second Pennyroyal Puzzler:

1. Tiebreaker Park
2. Sassafras
3. Odd Fellows
4. Four Square (or Foursquare)
5. Apex (unless it actually is highest above sea level)
6. Fly Is Open
7. Sunflour
8. Two Rivers (Pittsburgh's Heinz Field, replacement for Three Rivers Stadium)
9. Pow Wow
10. Silent Brigade
11. Booker T. Washington
12. Marietta Drive
13. Ms. Pac Man; Mr. Gatti's
14. Novadell
15. Chicagoan
16. Elkhorn City
17. Cambridge Drive

AP NEWS ANALYSIS

President Barack Obama on Monday meets with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in the Oval Office of the White House in Washington.

Obama demands his say on GOP's big day

WASHINGTON (AP) — I'm the president. You're not. With that stance, President Barack Obama did more than try to inject himself into Super Tuesday, the biggest Republican voting day so far. He tried to own it. Putting the power of incumbency on display, Obama used his first news conference of the year to admonish his Republican rivals, most bitingly by accusing them of being casual about war and American lives. While the candidates are "popping off" about war with Iran, Obama said he is the one who absorbs the costs of troops wounded or killed in battle. "Those folks don't have a lot of responsibilities," Obama said of the Republicans campaigning for his job. "They're not commander in chief." And so it went, topic by topic, throughout a scene that the White House tried to suggest was not about stealing some attention from Republicans. Obama officials insisted it was just a good day to get the president out for a full questioning for the first time since a sunset news conference in Hawaii back in November. Eager to remain the president and not the candidate, Obama often says there will be a time for politics this year. Yes, like now. It came up right away, of course, that voters in 10 states were going to the polls to help pick his November competitor. Because Obama brought it up. "I understand there are some political contests going on tonight," he said with a wry grin upon entering the White House briefing room. There are days when Obama waves off re-election questions as premature. This was not one of them. Consider: ■ Obama led off by offering ideas to help struggling homeowners, and finished his thought by saying: "I'm not one of those people who believe that we should sit by and wait for the housing market to hit bottom." That was a direct shot at presidential candidate Mitt Romney and his comments on the foreclosure crisis. ■ Obama, in fielding questions about keeping Iran from getting a nuclear bomb, hardened his position in intensely domestic political terms. He called out Republicans for making big threats and "beating the drums of war." He scoffed at them for ultimately, in his view, spelling out a playbook for Iran that mirrors his. "If some of these folks think that it's time to launch a war, they should say so, and they should explain to the American people exactly why they would do that and what the consequences would be," Obama said. "Everything else is just talk." He offered himself as the one who thinks through war, not the one who rushes the nation into a mistake. The implication about his competitors was clear. ■ Obama was pressed on whether he actually wants higher gasoline prices as a way to promote alternative fuels, a charge made by Newt Gingrich, one of the Republican presidential candidates. Obama jumped in to offer his political analysis on that one. "Do you think the president of the United States, going into re-election, wants gas prices to go up higher?" Obama said. "Is there anybody who thinks that makes a lot of sense? I want gas prices lower because they hurt families."

■ Obama positioned himself as a voice of civility and — to a nation of voting parents — maturity in the debate over whether health insurance plans should cover contraception. He said he called Sandra Fluke, the woman called a "slut" by radio host Rush Limbaugh, with his own two young daughters in mind. There's a way to debate, Obama said, that doesn't involve being demeaned. It wasn't long before another reporter had him talking about the race for the women's vote in general. "I believe that Democrats have a better story to tell women," Obama said. He then repeated his re-election pitch about fairness for the middle class. ■ Obama, confident all the while, looked like the guy who cannot wait to get into a one-on-one fight with a Republican nominee. He has expected it to be Romney all along.

No. 11 Murray St. bides time before tourney

BY COLIN FLY
AP SPORTS WRITER

Murray State accomplished its season-long goal of reaching the NCAA tournament. Now, the 11th-ranked Racers must wait — and wait and wait — to see what comes next.

Senior guard Donte Poole said he's already lived the longest 1.1 seconds of his life during the final play of the Racers' victory in the Ohio Valley Conference tournament championship on Saturday, but the coming days certainly will drag on even more.

The soonest Murray State (30-1) will play again is next Thursday — a layoff of at least 11 days.

"That 1.1 seconds in the OVC championship was the longest 1.1 seconds of my life, but these 11 days are going to be long," Poole said. "We've just got to make sure we stay focused, stay hungry."

Murray State has a lot it can build off from its rally over Tennessee State for a 54-52 victory that was capped when senior Jewuan Long made a floater and the Racers held off the Tigers.

"For me to make that shot, it could've been anybody," Long said. "I was going to make the right play. At the same time, any of our players could've done that."

The Racers are currently one of three men's Division I teams with 30 wins — along with No. 1 Kentucky and No. 2 Syracuse — but unlike those major conference schools, the Racers will be forced to sit and wait until the NCAA tournament.

Long said they'll use the time wisely to prepare even though they won't know their next opponent until Sunday.

"I would hope it would go by quick, but I believe it's going to go by a little bit slow because it's just the anticipation. We're excited to go to the NCAA tournament," he said. "I know what we're getting into. It means more practice. We're just ready to get back on the floor and play."

The Racers took Sunday and Monday off and coach Steve Prohm is still deciding how to bridge the layoff. He plans to fill the time with scrimmages, weightlifting sessions and individual workouts before the selection show.

"I think it's a very small window (to relax). We can't become too complacent, we can't become too comfortable. Wherever we go, we've got to make sure we're ready because from this point on, there's no more chances," Poole said. "It's one and done, either you do what you've got to do and move on or you don't and you lose."

"A lot of teams might become too comfortable, they might be happy with the success that they had so far, but I just think that allows teams to get beat and we're not ready to stop this journey we've been on."

In the meantime, Prohm believes Murray State can make a strong case to be a No. 2 seed in the tournament. "We have like five or six top 100, 125 (RPI) wins, so when you factor that into the equation and then you look at the fact we're 30-1, you have to sit back and say, 'Wow,'" Prohm said. "You're not just 30-1 by mistake. Now, do I think we're going to get a two seed? Probably not. But, four, five or six if I'm a betting man."

Most pundits are picking the Racers to fall somewhere between those numbers, commonly landing a five or six seed. If that happens, Murray State would face either one of the final at-large teams or one of the highest seeded conference tournament winners — a team that could have similar experience as the Racers did in 2010.

Poole, Long, Isaiah Canaan, Ivan Aska and Ed Daniel played as a 13 seed when the Racers beat Vanderbilt in the first round before falling to eventual NCAA runner-up Butler.

UK's Davis sweeps SEC accolades

BY KEITH JENKINS

NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The first of what is expected to be a long laundry list of postseason accolades for Kentucky standout Anthony Davis was announced Tuesday.

The freshman forward was named the Southeastern Conference Player of the Year, Freshman of the Year and Defensive Player of the Year by the league's coaches.

Davis, a 6-foot-10, 220-pound Chicago native, leads No. 1 Kentucky in scoring (14.4 points) and rebounding (9.8) and paces the nation with 4.71 blocks per game. He also ranks sixth nationally in field goal percentage (66.3 percent).

Davis is the first Wildcat to earn SEC Player of the Year honors since John Wall in 2010. Davis is the fourth straight Kentucky player to be named SEC Freshman of the Year, joining teammate Terrence Jones (2011) and former Wildcats DeMarcus Cousins (2010) and Patrick Patterson (2008).

In addition to Davis, Kentucky coach John Calipari also earned an honor: The 53-year-old third-year Wildcats coach named SEC Coach of the Year. Calipari led Kentucky (30-1, 16-0) to a school record for regular-season wins and only the third unbeaten mark in conference play in school history (1996, 2003).

Kentucky senior guard Darius Miller was named the SEC Sixth Man of the Year. The 6-foot-8, 235-pound Maysville native earned the honor after becoming the 58th member of the Wildcats' 1,000-point club and averaging 10.0 points and 2.1 assists per game. Miller is the first Kentucky player in school history to win the award.

Freshman Michael Kidd-Gilchrist joined Davis on the All-SEC first team, All-Freshman team and All-Defensive team. Kidd-Gilchrist averaged 11.9 points and 7.8 rebounds per game for the Wildcats in the regular season.

Sophomores Terrence Jones and Doron Lamb each earned second-team All-SEC honors. Jones is averaging 12.3 points and 6.8 rebounds this season, while Lamb is tallying 13.3 points and shooting a team-high 84 percent from the free throw line.

Joining Davis and Kidd-Gilchrist on the SEC All-Freshman team is 2011 Kentucky Mr. Basketball Anthony Hickey. The former Christian County point guard is averaging 9.2 points and 3.7 rebounds and leads the Tigers in assists (3.7) and steals (2.0).

The top-seeded Wildcats will return to action in the SEC tournament at noon Friday in New Orleans, La. Kentucky will face either LSU or Arkansas.

Western wins Sun Belt, earns NCAA berth

BY KURT VOIGT

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — Teeng Akol found himself on the bottom of Western Kentucky's mid-court dogpile inside Summit Arena.

The Hilltoppers' junior didn't mind in the least.

Akol scored 23 points and George Fant added 17 as Western Kentucky kept its dancing shoes on for a little while longer, earning a 74-70 win over North Texas on Tuesday night in the championship game of the Sun Belt conference tournament.

Colonels' season ends

BY JOE WILSON
NEW ERA SPORTS EDITOR

MADISONVILLE, Ky. — The Christian County Colonels' three-year reign as Region 2 basketball champions is over after host Madisonville-North Hopkins rolled to a 70-56 win Monday night in the Region 2 boys' basketball tournament semifinals.

The Maroons jumped out to a 16-7 lead and never looked back with guard Jawan Combs connecting on three of his five 3-pointers in the opening period.

"He did to us what Jarvis (Irby) did to Webster County for us last week," Christian County coach Tyler Smithhart said. "It was just a backbreaker and it's really hard to fight back from that. We knew he was a shooter and we did a poor job of finding him in the transition."

Christian County (9-22) struggled from the floor: Irby, who scored points in the Colonels' opening round win over Webster, and second-leading scorer Quan Poindexter, both were held without a point.

"We wanted to make it difficult for them to score at all, not just those two guys," said Madisonville coach Marty Cline. "We wanted to play good, solid defense and make them work for everything they got."

The defending state champions shot only 33 percent (15 for 45) in the game. C.J. Cotton led the way with 25 points and Korey Mosley added 12 for the Colonels.

The Maroons (23-8) led by as much as 25-11 in the first half and took their biggest lead at 50-28 on another three by Combs late in the third quarter.

Christian County rallied behind Cotton to cut the gap to 66-53.

It was a disappointing end to the season for the Colonels, who had won 10 straight region tournament games entering Monday. But Smithhart said he was proud of his team's play down the stretch of the season.

"These guys set some goals for themselves and having a shiny record wasn't one of them," Smithhart said. "They stayed focused on making themselves better and they stayed focus on winning the first game in the district tournament and getting into the region tournament. They stayed focus on their goal."

Combs led Madisonville with 25 points with 19 points. Daylyn Jones added 16 points and Cameron Tandy added 13.

HHS: Wells to lead Lady Tigers into state

They know they can beat them because we beat them. ... All the teams they had to beat, we played them already this year."

The Lady Tigers and the Lady Marshals both played Murray, Union County, Calloway County, Ballard Memorial and Henderson County this season. Hopkinsville went 5-1 against the group, while Marshall finished 7-2.

Though none of her players have played in the state tournament, Wells has. During her career at Madisonville-North Hopkins High School (1981-86), she led the Lady Maroons to the state tournament in 1983. Wells went on to be one of the most decorated basketball players in school history, earning first-team All-State honors in 1986 and finishing runner-up to the Kentucky Miss Basketball crown.

Wells' 45-point performance in a single game remains a school record for both boys' and girls' basketball, and she's the all-time leading scorer in program history with 1,911 points.

Wells said it has been more gratifying to win as a coach as opposed to when she was a player. But she said she'll use those state tournament game-day experiences to help her girls understand that yes, the stakes are higher; but Thursday's just another basketball game.

"You have to seize your moment," Wells said. "I mean, this an opportunity for us, and we got to go down there and not just be happy we got there. We want to go down there and we want to win some games. I think I can help them with that because of the fact I've been there and I've done that. I'm going to prepare them and take them through the right channels and not let them get too hyped up. I'm going to try to take them over there and let them see what it's like the day before so they just don't walk in there and they're in awe."

The District 8 and Region 2 champion Lady Tigers are scheduled to leave for Bowling Green this morning.

TIGERS: Hoptown earns region crown

Eventually, Trey Edwards' free throw with 2:21 left in the quarter pushed the advantage to 52-35.

"We talked at halftime about everybody coming out and playing together and we could go to Rupp," said junior guard Jordan Majors, who led Hoptown with 19 points.

Just when it appeared the Tigers were set to blow out the Maroons, Madisonville closed the quarter on a 14-2 spurt capped by a steal and half-court buzzer-beater by the Maroons' Byron Dulin that cut the Tigers' lead to 54-49.

"We just had to stay focused, keep our heads up and not let it get to us," said senior center Laurence Smith.

Madisonville's Jawan Combs hit a 3-pointer to start the fourth quarter and the hosts trailed only 54-52 with 7:44 to go.

But that was as close as the Maroons, who have not won a region title since 2001, would get.

Senior guard C.J. Childress had a couple of key steals and scored three points in an 8-2 Tigers' run that sealed the win.

"All I want to do is one thing and that's to win state," Childress said. "I want to do something big for our town."

Matlock scored 16 points and six rebounds for the Tigers, who will play Region 12 champion Southwestern in the first round of the Boys' Sweet 16 State

Hoptown advanced to the finals Monday night by rallying from an early 16-5 deficit to defeat Henderson County 66-54.

After the Colonels (18-15), who were led by Rick Armstead's 15 points, took a 42-40 lead into the final frame, Majors opened the fourth quarter with a 3-pointer to put the Tigers up 43-42. They never trailed again.

Welcome the madness with an evening of pizza

OK, here we go... March Madness. For all of us Kentucky fans, this is the greatest time of the year. It is also a great time to gather a group of friends for pizza night. After a trip to Italy many years ago, I fell in love with homemade pizza. I am not the biggest fan of fast food pizza, but I love the simple fresh ingredients of a homemade pizza. Pizza night is not a fancy affair — just uncork a bottle of wine, turn up the music or turn on the game and invite your friends over to hang out in the kitchen. When it comes to toppings, the sky is the limit and it is really fun to experiment with ingredients and combinations.

I can do all the prep work early, which makes for a more relaxed evening.

The key to a good pie is not to overload the crust with sauce, toppings or cheese. You should keep it simple.

There are many fabulous dough recipes out there, but I find the frozen dough to be just great. I stock up on dough at the grocery and freeze it so I am always ready to create a pizza.

While I use a frozen crust, jarred pizza sauce is barred from my kitchen.

My basic tomato sauce is very easy to make and it makes all the difference in flavor.

You can freeze the sauce or use it as a base to build many other great dishes.

My nephew, Joseph, and I found the pickled pepper recipe a few years ago and we love these peppers.

They are great on pizzas and sandwiches and would also be a great gift for the foodie on your list.

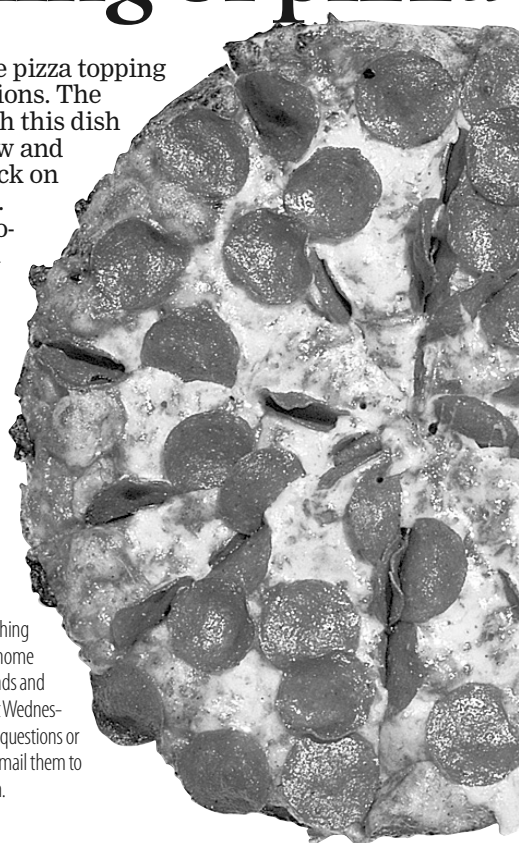

MARGARET PRIM

Another favorite pizza topping is caramelized onions. The key to success with this dish is to cook them low and slow. They also rock on burgers or brats.

The fig and prosciutto pizza is a favorite of ours, as is the Italian pie.

The most important element of pizza night is good ingredients and good friends and if the Cats win, that's the dessert.

MARGARET PRIM runs a clothing business from her Hopkinsville home and enjoys entertaining for friends and family. Her column runs the first Wednesday of every month. If you have questions or comments about her column, email them to knefood@kentuckynewera.com.

Italian pizza

Tomato sauce
Caramelized onions
Italian sausage
Pickled peppers
Red pepper flakes
Cheddar cheese

Preheat your oven to 500 degrees for at least an hour.

Brush the dough with olive oil. Ladle the sauce in the center of the dough and use the back of the ladle in a circular motion to spread the sauce over the dough, leaving a 1 inch rim.

Scatter the Italian sausage, caramelized onions and pickled peppers over the sauce. Sprinkle with red pepper flakes and add the cheddar cheese.

Bake until the crust is golden brown and crispy and the cheese is bubbly.

A spread of pizza toppings is at Margaret Prim's home on South Virginia Street. With the NCAA tournament right around the corner, a pizza night with friends is a great way to enjoy March.

Basic tomato sauce

1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil

1 large Spanish onions, finely diced (about 2 cups)
1 tablespoon kosher salt, plus more to taste

1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, plus more to taste

4 garlic cloves, thinly sliced

Half of a medium carrot, peeled and shredded in a food processor or on a box grater

3 tablespoons fresh thyme leaves

2. 28-ounce cans whole peeled plum tomatoes, including their juices (preferably San Marzano)

Heat the olive oil in a medium saucepan over medium heat.

Add the onion, sprinkle with the salt and the pepper, cook the onion, stirring occasionally, until it is tender and translucent, about 10 minutes.

Add the garlic and cook one to two minutes to soften, stirring occasionally so it doesn't brown.

Add the carrot and thyme leaves and cook, stirring occasionally, until the carrot is soft, six to eight minutes.

Add the tomatoes, including their juices. Bring the liquid to a boil, reduce the heat and simmer the sauce, stirring often, for about 30 minutes, until it has thickened slightly. When the sauce is done, pass it through a food mill into a large bowl.

Taste for seasoning and add more salt or pepper if desired. Use the sauce or set it aside to cool to room temperature, then transfer it to an airtight container and refrigerate for up to several days or freeze for up to several months.

Fig and prosciutto pizza

Fig and prosciutto pizza

1 pizza dough
2 cups crumbled gorgonzola cheese (8 ounces)
6 small figs, cut into 1/4 inch slices
2 tablespoons fig balsamic vinegar, divided
8 thin slices prosciutto
1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
8 cups arugula

Preheat oven to 450 degrees Fahrenheit. Sprinkle a large rimless baking sheet or pizza stone with cornmeal. Roll out dough on floured work surface to a round and transfer to pizza stone. Sprinkle gorgonzola over dough. Sprinkle with pepper. Place figs in medium bowl; drizzle one tablespoon vinegar over. Set aside.

Bake pizza until crust is golden brown on bottom, 15 to 20 minutes.

Immediately drape prosciutto slices over covering pizza completely. Arrange fig slices atop prosciutto. Bake until figs are heated through, about 1 minute.

Transfer pizza to cutting board. Whisk remaining vinegar and oil in a large bowl. Add arugula. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Toss to coat. Mound salad atop pizza, cut and serve.

Caramelized onions

Several medium to large onions, yellow, white or red
Olive oil
Butter
Salt
Pepper
Sugar

Slice off the root and top ends of the onions and peel the onions. Cut them in half. Lay them cut side down and slice the onions lengthwise to desired thickness.

Use a thick-bottomed sauté pan for maximum pan contact with the onions. Coat the bottom of the pan with olive oil and butter. I use about a teaspoon per onion. Heat the pan on medium high heat until the oil is shimmering.

Add the onion slices and stir to coat the onions with the oil. Spread the onions out evenly over the pan, season with salt and pepper and cooking, stirring occasionally. Depending on how strong your stove-top burner is, you may need to reduce the heat to medium or medium low to prevent the onions from burning or drying out.

After 10 minutes, you can sprinkle the sugar over the onions to help with the caramelization process. If the onions start to dry out, you can add a little water to the pan.

Let the onions cook for 30 minutes to an hour, stirring every few minutes.

Continue to cook and scrape the bottom of the pan until your onions are a rich, browned color. At the end of the cooking process, you may want to add a little balsamic vinegar or wine to help deglaze the pan and bring some additional flavor to the onions.

Pickled peppers

1 pound sweet or mild mini-bell peppers, sliced crosswise into 1/4 inch thick rounds, seeded
2 large shallots, thinly sliced, separated into rings

2 cups white wine vinegar

1/2 cup sugar

3 tablespoons water

5 fresh thyme sprigs

2 large garlic cloves, thinly sliced

1/4 teaspoon dried crushed red pepper

Pinch of coarse kosher salt

Place peppers and shallots in a medium bowl.

Mix vinegar and next six ingredients in medium saucepan. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring to dissolve sugar. Bring to boil. Remove brine from heat. Carefully pour over peppers and shallots. Let stand for five minutes. Uncover and cool to room temperature. Transfer to quart-sized jar, pressing peppers into brine. Cover and chill at least four hours and up to two weeks.

Great on pizzas and sandwiches!
